To whom it may concern at the FCC:I respectfully request that the NAB's petition 04-160 be rejected. One of the reasons I continue to pay for satellite radio service is for the instant access satellite radio gives me to local traffic and weather information. With satellite, I know I will be updated with the most current information, when I need it, and without haveing to put up with broadcast radio's tendency to preempt traffic reporting with sporting events, special programming, or whatever suits the broadcaster. I have the choice of watching my local television stations or cable's weather Channel. How is this any different? I also greatly enjoy the enormous variety of qualiry programming I get on satellite radio. If traffic and weather programming is taken away today, how do I know the comedy channels (which in the future broadcasters may claim unfairly competes with their 'comedian' DJs) won't be next?

Please, give me my CHOICE and let competition work.
